The Senior Class of

Central Academy School

Fincastle, Virginia

Foreword

"Make use of time, let not advantage slip." In a competitive world such as the one in which we are living, time is of essence. Each passing hour, as a symbol of fruitful years, we have been in the process of shaping ourselves in the mold of leadership. As the clock hands reach twelve, separating day from night by hours, so has one of our goals been reached--the completion of high school. We, as seniors, must now cause the other half of the cycle to continue to function without being marred by destruction and harm.

YEARBOOK COMMITTEE

Mrs. Georgia Meadows, Mrs. L. M. Gibbs, Mrs. D. C. Curtis, Mrs. Clora Terry, Mr. G. F. Mitchell, Mrs. D. Y. Johns, Miss B. V. Holt.

DEDICATION

To our Mrs. Lithonia McFarlin Gibbs, who, in her never-ending sacrifices, has contributed much to the development of the educational opportunities of our community, and has led us to a greater respect for our school and for ourselves.

With the patience of Job, the boldness of Paul, and the wisdom of Solomon, you, Mrs. Gibbs, have encouraged us on, ever hoping for a brighter day.

It was Goethals who said, "Successfully to accomplish any task, it is necessary not only that you should give it the best there is in you, but that you should obtain from it the best there is in those under your guidance."

To you, we dedicate the Centademic, our first yearbook.

ADMINISTRATION

MR. C. L. CONYERS

B.S. Degree, Savannah State College; M.S. Degree, Virginia State College; Advanced Study, University of Illinois and the University of Virginia.

PRINCIPAL'S MESSAGE

May I take this opportunity to congratulate the students, faculty, and patrons on the publication of the first yearbook of the school. A special accommodation is in order to the yearbook staff who has worked diligently in giving its time and effort to this annual. To all of us, since this represents a first for our school, we are especially grateful that this yearbook was done through co-ordination of efforts, unity of purpose, and the full use of the various talents of the entire faculty and student body.

Congratulations to the seniors who represent the first graduation class under the new administration! To some of you, completion of high school has been a long and hard fight, and to others the fight has just begun. You must remember that the road to success not only has to be sought and found, it must be cleared by those of you who seek to travel it successfully. To those of you who desire to further your education, there will be special road blocks ahead such as traits of character, attitudes and convictions that tend to make the travel difficult. We hope that the school has given you the necessary tools and equipment to clear the road for smooth travel.

You must have faith in your traveling, because without faith you cannot rise to the demands of life either in inner power or outward practices. Therefore, you must face the task with courage as a master of mind, molder of character, and shepherd of spirit; for you must write the next chapter in God's continuous story of creation.

OUR ALMA MATER

Central, now our voices raised
With harmony and grateful praise,
For our school we love so dear,
For our friends we've all found here.

For your lovely majestic form,
Which spreads silently o'er this land,
Offering to us challenging roles,
Preparing us to meet our goals.

Chorus

Central, true to thee we'll all remain,
After we have all sort our fame.
For you smiled on us in doubts and fears
Banishing all our child-like fears
True to thee we shall remain,
O'le Central Dear

CLASS HISTORY

It was an early date in September 1957, a calm, peaceful autumnal day, radiant with the sunshine of hope, cheer, and joyous promise, that the good ship, "Academy Hill," stood at anchor at the wharf of a new school year. It was the same old ship that had carried many passengers to safe harbor in the land of Great Wisdom. This day was a gala day in history, and many people gazed upon it in wonder as they watched the sixteen beautiful and charming young ladies and the eighteen bold and dashing young gentlemen happily step aboard. It was rumored that they were about to set sail over new and untried waters in quest of the Fountain of Perfect Understanding.

As the ship stood anchored that eventful morning in September, the passengers began to arrive and since we were the first to enroll, to us was entrusted the important task of writing the log of the voyage--the voyage we realized was to be the most important one of our lives.

We had scarcely finished the task of placing our signatures when a companion joined us, a boy who had sailed from another island to join us on our cruise of knowledge. In a short time many others crowded the ship, filling all the berths, thereby assuring us a very successful voyage. Six passengers were lost in the rugged sea of learning.

Our ship then steamed out of the harbor, and we started our voyage of High School Life. Our voyage would cover four seas. We then embarked upon the Freshman Sea. The sailing of the Freshman Sea was rather rugged and three passengers were dropped overboard from the smooth ship of learning.

As we bade farewell to the Freshman's Sea, we entered upon a whole new out look. Our ship changed to a new school, the now famous Central Academy, where we were joined by pupils from other schools which made our sailing more pleasant and profitable. Our sea was choppy but because of our new school, new teachers and new faces, we soon forgot our troubles and really enjoyed the complicated subjects of Algebra and Biology. We had less time to enjoy watching the sky and the gradual changes of the sea. Despite the difficulties encountered, the majority were not able to withstand the gale and procure their passports for the Junior Sea. Fifteen passengers were lost along the way.

As we pursued our voyage on the Junior Sea, tranquility was restored once more. We found History, English, and Art exciting and everyone was eager to talk about them. Despite our fascinating experiences, four passengers were left behind.

At last we reached the Senior Sea and what a difficult sea we were sailing! The waves were greatly upset by Chemistry, Shorthand, and Geometry, and a few of us suffered from sea sickness. Though we were tossed about considerably, we managed to keep our ship off the shore, and landed safely.

It has been a wonderful voyage and we accumulated many souvenirs from every port. Now we face a larger and more majestic sea. "THE SEA OF REAL LIFE."--

CLASS MOTTO

'Tis Wise to Learn; 'Tis God-Like to Create.

CLASS POEM

Betty Lewis

We'll climb though the rocks be rugged;
We've climbed a little way
And gathered flowers of learning
To crown this happy day.
But now our paths look rugged
And very steep and long,
We'll have to be so careful
To keep from turning wrong.

But birds will sing about us
The zephyrs will gently blow;
The sun will shine in splendor
To show us where to go.
So gazing ever upward
We'll press on all the time;
And though the rocks be rugged
We'll climb and climb and climb.

CLASS SONG

(Tune--EBB TIDE)

Now our school day draw nigh and we must say good-bye, but we leave with the memories that we hold so dear within our hearts.
Through the years we have trod and the time has come to part. We must go our separate ways to find the dreams of earlier days. At first we took a chance and we must struggle to the last.
Be our goal, big or small, we must fight on and on in the world; be it dark or be it bright.
All good things must surely end and we'll miss you our good friends, miss you so!

Mr. Mitchell, as our guide, yes, he stood right by our side. Through the year of toil and snare, we could always find him there to lend a helping hand when alone we could not stand. So to you, we truly say you'll be missed more and more each day, every hour in the day of the year.
Mr. Conyers, yes, you, too, we do give our thanks to you, all of you!

PROPHECY

Listen, O ye men and women, youths and maidens, and all ye people of Central Academy for my crystal ball is about to weave a tale of future happenings.

As I look into the land of the future, I discern, moving among the dim shadows of the people yet to be, the familiar shapes of those fair and radiant beings who were once my classmates.

First, I see Nellie Burrell teaching at Marian College in South Ben, Indiana after many years of hard work. Now, as I gaze further into the future, I can visualize a figure. Ah, it's Richard Pierce, one of the quiet ones, who is the head of Police Headquarters in Detroit, Mich. Of all things, I can see Betty Lewis working in New York as a beautician.

Robert Cooper, or should I say, Gen. Robert Cooper is making the Army his career.

Now I see Faye Saunders in Atlantic City, New Jersey where she has fulfilled her greatest ambition--the maker and keeper of the home. I find myself, Louise Sullivan, working toward a Master of Arts in Music.

The degree of Master of Arts is being conferred upon Ronald Russell at U.C.L.A. A position, as head of the Mathematics Department, at Fisk University is awaiting him.

I can now see Sue Walton in Philadelphia working as an executive secretary to a large business firm. The picture is about to fade, but wait, there's Jacqueline Terry working hard on test questions at Virginia State College in order that she will graduate as Magna Cum Laude from graduate school.

Before the picture fades completely, I can see Cora Johnson in a position as head nurse at Cedars of Lebanon in California.

The last glimmer of things to come reveals Joanne Clay employed as the secretary of a famous fashion designer. She is also the hair stylist for many of the Ebony Models.
